Author Report Help

February 19, 2013

If a student comes to you looking for help with an author report, in addition to works of literary criticism found in the Online Catalog, there are several excellent online database resources available to show them. Both Twayne’s Authors Online and Scribner’s Writers Online offer full-text, detailed information about writers – American, European, and from the world around!
Notice the authors included come from various historical periods, geographical areas and genres... and represent popular writers as well as more literary types.

Each entry in the Twayne’s database is a full-length book of literary criticism, with clickable links to each chapter. And most include a biographical chapter.
You can enter an author's name in the search box, or use the index links at the bottom. It's a bit confusing, as the list of authors shown here is only the contents of one of many volumes. If you don't find your author on the first attempt, try both places.
Faceted searching lets you select the type of entry you want: Biographical, critical, etc.
