Searching by Title in OneFile Databases

May 21, 2013

Make sure you click on the “Publication Search” tab when you want to search for a particular magazine.

You also have the option of browsing ALL of the titles in the database alphabetically.

If two titles are retrieved that contain all the words entered, just click on the one you are looking for.
You can search a specific term within the entire publication, or browse all articles within a specific date/issue.

All articles retrieved are from the chosen publication.
Look for “Related Subjects” when you find an article that you can use, and follow that lead to related articles in different publications. You may find synonyms for your search term here.

Remember that OneFile links magazine, newspaper, and academic journal databases—so you can try each!
You can also search for a keyword anywhere in the magazine’s title.

When you use the asterisk, you retrieve titles containing the root word -- in this case "environment"-- PLUS other possible endings: (-al; -alist; -alism). This will broaden and expand your results to be more inclusive...
