Southeastern is pleased to announce that Southeastern members’ digital collections are now discoverable through New York Heritage. Cross search our region’s collection with other collections from across the state and learn more about the rich history of the Hudson River Valley. New York Heritage is a collaborative project of the Empire State Library Network, of which Southeastern is a member.

Although our regional digital collections are no longer hosted at Hudson River Valley Heritage (HRVH), HRVH (https://www.hrvh.org/) didn’t go away! The HRVH website will continue to serve as a gateway to Hudson Valley resources. You can access online exhibits and historical newspapers through HRVH.

For the time being, you may also begin searching or browsing our members’ NY Heritage digital collections from the HRVH website.
A simple search of Poughkeepsie yields 3,267 items to peruse. Click on a picture of interest:

Click on the red button with the two arrows and your picture will become larger.
Item descriptions are rich, informing the viewer of the owning institution including a section on rights management:
You can explore the website through these portals:

Happy Searching!