Gift Wrapping the Japanese Way

December 22, 2020

Last week Shannon Butler gave you some gift wrapping tips using paper. I love paper and recycle the paper for collages. But for those who want to be more echo friendly and a little bit artsy you can wrap your gifts the Japanese way using cloths or material called Furoshiki.
To learn how to wrap presents with fabric and tie the knots please visit this blog: https://blog.spoonflower.com/2019/11/6-ways-to-wrap-a-gift-with-furoshiki/ which is replete with instructional videos.

Searching the Online Catalog yields a variety of books and videos on Furoshiki:

If you don’t have the time to wrap a gift you can always brown bag it.
Happy Wrapping and Blessed Holy Days to All!
